

A lot has changed since then—almost everything has changed.

Supermarkets, expressways, and hospitals are five minutes away now. The high school is so large that it would have provided classroom space for the entire county—and there are two of them! Chinese, Greek, and Italian restaurants seem as common now as Frisch's.

With so many fond memories of the past, sometimes it's tough to accept all the changes.

The Way You Remember It

It's hard to believe...

Not only have your children grown up, but their children have grown up too.

The roof looks ok, but you know it won't be long before it will need another tear-off and the third set of 20-year shingles.

It's amusing to hear people talk about being 'green' — that's been your life since you settled here.

You might wonder,

'What will happen when we're gone?'

Will our property become a sub-division? A strip mall? A gas station?

Will our children want to sell it?

Will they have to?

With a new program called Liberty Living Legacy, the way you remember it, could be the way it will always be. Property can be voluntarily donated for preservation as a park.

The Way It Could Always Be

No sub-divisions. No strip malls. No gas stations. Your property is preserved for the ages to be enjoyed by others in the manner that you choose.

A nature walk. An arboretum. A bird haven. A farm. A playground. Quiet woods or a peaceful pond—the possibilities are endless...

And that's the way it could always
